[vc_column_text css_animation="fadeIn"]Airports are a place which operates in high-intensity crowd conditions. From passengers, airline staff to contractors, people are the core aspect of airports and airlines. Keeping track of the location of a specific person is becoming critically important for the airports. It could be a service engineer allocated for aircraft or a ground handling person clearing bags at an unloading belt or a specific passenger in the departure hall. Many times, unavailability of required people at required locations leads to chaos, ambiguity, delayed departures and loss in productivity.

EnTrackPeople provides a platform for the different type of tracking requirements on the airport, from short range people identification to real-time people identification with Auto-ID technologies.[/vc_column_text]
